DATELINE OCTOBER 1, 2013. HOUSTON, TX. This September, Recipe for Success Foundation’s first board meeting of the school year was graced with three enthusiastic new members. Since its 2005 launch the Houston-based nonprofit has grown leaps and bounds to establish its award winning Seed-to-Plate Nutrition Education™ over 100 programs to provide more than 20,000 elementary students with the knowledge and skills to make healthy eating decisions for life. Much of this success can be attributed to dedicated leadership.

New board members include: Ben Ferreira, Holly Smith and Jeffrey Wooten. With over 15 years in the grocery business, Ben Ferreira serves as the Regional Director of Produce and Floral for H-E-B Grocery Co. He leads a team of over 100 department managers in over 80 retail locations, oversees many aspects of the Produce business and supports local farmers by developing business relationships with local growers. Since 2011 Houston native Holly Smith has worked for her family's foundation, The Robert & Janice McNair Foundation, where she coordinates grant requests and support for local nonprofit organizations including those involved in early childhood education and health initiatives. A graduate of Cornell University, Jeff Wooten recently retired from a 22-year career with General Electric (GE). In his latest role as Senior Human Resources Manager for GE’s Energy Drilling & Surface business, he led all HR activities across 7,000 global employees within five businesses.

Together they bring a diverse and committed skills set to the RFS Board and are ready to get to work. Full bios available at www.recipe4success.org/boardmembers.html.
