

Healthy Eating Educator & Ambassador

Are you an innovative, energetic, results-oriented, tech-savvy communicator and educator; passionate about healthy food, gardening, cooking and farming? Can you go toe-to-toe with an eight-year old and excite them about fresh vegetables? Can you inspire cynical adults to change their dining habits? Consider joining our Houston based, nationally recognized, award-winning non-profit organization. We are expanding our team of dedicated professionals who work to reverse the epidemic of childhood obesity with programs that teach healthy eating, inspire healthy eating and empower healthy eating, intent on creating a world where healthy food is shared, appreciated and celebrated.

You will be: An accomplished organic gardener and enthusiastic home cook or trained chef; a talented teacher for all ages—especially young children; an exceptional communicator and team player; dedicated to achieving results; ready to love your job and work with the most dedicated crew on earth!

Our paid training involves web-based coursework and on the job training in classroom. Certified Instructors teach cooking and gardening classes on campus during school days, and at Hope Farms during the day, after school and on weekends; they mentor wellness programs in elementary schools and inspire a culture of health throughout the community.

This is a fulltime position; salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Main office of the Foundation is in Houston's Museum District and Hope Farms is just south of the Loop 610. Dependable transportation is required. More information about the organization may be found at www.recipe4success.org

If you are interested, please submit a cover letter—describing to Gracie and the team why you would be a perfect fit for us, along with your resume and three references to:

Gracie Cavnar, Founder & CEO
c/o Tara Converse tara@recipe4success.org or by mail to Gracie Cavnar
Recipe for Success Foundation
4400 Yupon, Houston TX 77006

